“Don't educate your children to be rich. Educate them to be happy. So when they grow up they will know the value of things, not the price.”

A happy and content child learns the best and grows the best. In today's times, when there are a million sources of stress and misery which directly or indirectly affect our children, it is our duty as a school and as parents to do our part in neutralizing it and provide our children with a happy and gleeful environment.

We at MPS International do our best to keep their spirits high through increased positive peer to peer and peer to mentor interaction. Various playful and lively pedagogies have been adapted too to make learning a positive and nurturing experience.

So students, you must understand that to enjoy a beautiful and successful life, we must be happy from within for you cannot pour from an empty cup. We must be happy to make others happy.

God bless you all. Keep smiling.

Er. Deepak Sharda

Secretary (MPS International)

From the Desk Of...

Respected Principal

“Failure is the opportunity to begin again and every new beginning opens the intellectual door to educate young minds.” Young minds must be directed to touch every aspect of education without any hesitation. Our torchbearers never hesitate to experiment with the pedagogy to train each and every young mind to be an efficacious person as well as a responsible citizen of our nation although without any testimony it's all in vain. Therefore, every examination is an opportunity to deliver your best. Instead of getting stressed, worried, or scared of exams, you should welcome it cheerfully as it helps you move further into this dynamic life. Since your exams are approaching, it's highly expected that you leave no stone unturned to deliver your best. You must sharpen your swords of knowledge and get ready to face your final exam.

As the poet laureate, Rabindranath wrote –

“Where the mind is without fear and the head is held high,
Where knowledge is free.”

Knowledge gives you confidence and removes all kinds of fear of ignorance. An exam removes the fear from the mind and fills it with the light of knowledge and keeps your head high.

Time is very precious and should not be wasted on procrastination and delay. The best way to utilize it is to cover up the interstices or the empty space but hardly anyone pays attention to it. But as a student, you must start making utmost use of the interstice of your everyday life. Grab each and every moment of your day and convert it into the most enlightening and intellectual moment. Life is full of exams but no exam will pass in vain. It always gives you something whether it's an improvement or a lesson. It's a significant part of life. It's a passport to allow you to move further into the next phase of life although it's not so easy to grab. If I say this passport requires your irresistible efforts and determination to reach the pinnacle, it won't be an exaggeration. I wish, "May you deliver your best in the coming up exams and touch the sky of success."

God bless you!!

Archana Singh

Principal (MPS International)

From the Desk Of...

Respected Vice Principal

“Every skill you acquire doubles your odds of success.”

Skill based learning is the future of Indian Education system and MPS International firmly believes in the notion. Rote learning and textual learning are now methods of the past. The major pedagogical shift due to NEP 2020 has initiated major emphasis on experiential and skill based learning.

Several researches and studies have proved that students tend to retain more knowledge when they have a hands on experience. This pedagogy might not be easy but yields excellent results and builds brighter future.

Dear Students, create a goal and follow through. Your perseverance and skills will take you to success.
All the best for the future!

It wasn't a thought or a plan, the pandemic got it done !!

The monthly newsletter, E-GENESIS, can rightly define "Necessity is the father of invention." Had the pandemic not struck the normal, we wouldn't have stepped into the new normal. The kids sat closed in homes with no fun, no entertainment and no creativity. It became quintessential to hand them some good read. Under the erudite guidance of worthy Principal ma'am and the confidence that I vested in my student editors, we set the sail of our journey.

Initially, it seemed difficult. Collection of data, filtering, editing, designing pages, layout, set up and a piazza of activities, that to online and virtual. Tough!! Really tough!! But, my adept student team proved steward to the rough sail. Dheeraj took charge of art, craft, drawings and clicks, Vedant worked over collection and scrutiny of data and Jiyana worked on page designing and layout. Every month it was a rush of choosing theme, sending invites, selecting entries and then daily Google meets for setting and designing. On one hand it was fun learning, on the other, an amaranthine task.

My team worked silently and diligently. The work was so smooth that none even guessed the tiring nights spent on it.

Now, at this second year anniversary of our newsletter, I look back to all odds we crossed, all learnings we made and the utter grooming we did that too in the melancholy of lock down

I would extend my gratitude to our ever supportive Hon. Secretary sir, Mr. Deepak Sharda, revered Principal, Ms. Archana Singh and respected Vice Principal, Ms. Manju Sharma for their guidance and faith they kept on us. Words would fall short for my students' editor Krityasudha Vyas, Yashvi Kasat, Radhika Rathi, Dakshita Tyagi and newly joined members Hardik Maheshwari, Shlok Rathi and Twisha Jethani without whom this newsletter would not have been possible

The strength of the team is each individual member. The strength of each member is the team

The power of a pen is more dangerous than a gun. As we have been publishing this newsletter for a long time, we can say confidently that numerous students have already got many chances to express their views, talent and creativity. It's a very small but indispensable platform for teachers and children both. Children should understand the power of pain at this tender age. There is still much to achieve on this path. Whatever we have achieved till is just a glimpse or a small part of a bigger and delicious cake of success that we aspire to have in future. Our children have infinite talent so they update their skills on a regular basis and get the best platform to showcase the same in the form of this newsletter. Not only teachers and students but parents are also excited for this news letter. We can conclude that this newsletter is crucial for the holistic development of our children in academic and nonacademic spheres both. In short I would say, if you want to change the world, pick up your pen and write.

The editorial team for E-Genesis has never been just a bunch of people working together for me. It has always felt like something more, like a small family. It was a beautiful journey. Every month working on newer ideas, designs and artworks really taught us the art of expression. I can very certainly say that there couldn't have been a better leader and mentor than Ma'am Deepshikha Ghai to lead the editorial team and E-Genesis to the heights it has reached today. She held all of us together as a team and guided us through. Her guidance and the experience of the team helped me through all the aspects of my life. As a design student, the learning's of E-Genesis has provided me a firm base of knowledge and expertise giving me an upper edge among all in college. Had E-Genesis not happened, I am unsure whether I would've grown and learnt so much. I am very grateful to Deepshikha ma'am who continues to guide and be the torchbearer of the newsletter and also to the new members of the team who are not just creating a newsletter but carrying forward a legacy for many more young artists to come. Thank you so much for considering me able enough to be a part of such a stupendous opportunity.

Ex- Student Editor (Jamia millia delhi)

E-genesis, which was initiated to bring students together through their participation in several activities during the pandemic, has now become a prominent part of MPS International. I was part of the editorial team for its initial days and have seen it transform from an idea to a success. Our very talented and cooperative team brought the amazing idea to life under the guidance of our very experienced leader, Ms. Deepshikha Ghai. She guided the team through every stone and has played a major role in the success of E-genesis. She is continuing to do the same and bring the best out of the current team, who are going to do better than we did and carry forward the newsletter, which will bring out many more young artists and talented students. I thank my school and the teachers who gave me this golden opportunity and experience, which is now turning out to be very helpful in my life's new phase, college. I am grateful that I was a part of this amazing team.

It seems like yesterday when I was applying For E-Genesis or I can say our School Editorial Team. This journey started a two years before and I became a part of this journey a year back. It has been my greatest pleasure being a part for it. I learned many things from our head, Respected Deepshikha Ma'am and our seniors Jiyana Jethani and Vedant Khunteta. E -Genesis has also enhanced my vocabulary, writing skills, Digital amelioration and I have learned important diameters of a perfect document which is going to help me further in many ways. To end, I wish E - Genesis Best of Luck for upcoming happy and enlightening years Thank You.

Krityasudha Vyas X-G Student Editor

It's been two years since E-genesis started and I have been part of this beautiful journey for a year now and it feels so great. I began my work as a writer and proofreader and had very little interest in designing, but destiny had other plans and I started to design a layout for E-genesis with the assistance of one of my favorite seniors, Jiyana Didi. She has played an essential role in my life for a year, and now the team still misses her. It's been more than two months since I started working independently in compilation and still have not achieved the perfection and the way she used to work. Our team had expanded a lot, but our seniors handled it very nicely. Their work was commendable. Our Editor in Chief (Team Head), Ms. Deepshikha Ghai ma'am, is an excellent mentor. I have been scolded many times by her, but it is always for good I have learned my things and other things under her, and I am very grateful to her for everything. Last, I would like to appreciate my fellow teammates Yashvi, Radhika, Dakshita, and newly joined juniors Hardik, Shlok, and Twisha, who have been supporters of me.

YASHVI KASAT X-E Student Editor

It feels like just yesterday that I was applying to E-Genesis or our School Editorial Team. This quest began two years ago, and I only simply became a part of it. It has given me tremendous joy to be a part of it. Respected Deepshikha Ma'am, our head, and our seniors Jiyana Jethani and Vedant Khunteta taught me a lot. E-Genesis has also improved my english, creative abilities, digital skills, and I have learnt important aspects of a perfect composition, which will aid me in many ways in the future. To end, I wish E - Genesis the best of luck in the future delightful and illuminating years.

It's only been a few days since I've been part of E-genesis, but it feels really nice. I am very grateful to Deepshikha ma'am who gave me the opportunity to be part of the team. I am really looking forward to it. I hope and promise to fulfil my duties and responsibilities. Finally, I want to thank my teammates for making me comfortable and I am pleased to join the team

Shlok Rathi

— Twisha Jethani VII-G Student Editor

At first, I was just another student sending in my write-ups to the team in charge; it was a way for me to show off my work to others, but working with such humble, kind, and supportive teammates and teachers has been a privilege and a dream come true. Plus, while working with all the talented teammates, I have also learnt a thing or two from them. Working in a team with responsibilities has helped me grow too, as I have had a sense of responsibility but I have never seen this work as a burden because I love to do the work in this team with talented people and I hope to continue working with even more passion, effort, and zeal. It has truly been a wonderful experience with adaptable and experienced people. I couldn't be more thankful to work with such amazing people and environment.

BOND

If you ask me, what is bond?

My imagination would search for something beyond.

Similar to the rigid diamonds that appear,
the strength of this emotion resists every wear and tear.

Defining this verbally would disregard its essence,
It's a true pure emotion in the entire earth's fence.

Some feel it through their child babbling,

Some through their girl smiling,

Some by watching their crops yielding,

And some by teasing their friends freely.

I agree that sometimes it crosses its limits,
interferes our decisions; turn mental peace to pieces.

But absolutely, it's a great pleasure to behold,

And if you attach it to the right, many mysteries unfold.

SUNDAY - NOT A DAY OF FUN, A DAY OF SUCCESS

For an ambitious student, Sunday is the most important day of the week.

Even though it's attractive on a Sunday morning to wake up late and to be with your old friend the TV, you really must resist.

Why? Because Sunday sets the tone for the week that follows,

This is absolutely true. If you attack the day on Sunday, you will start your week with momentum behind you. If you let the day attack you, your whole week will pass without doing anything superb. So how do you overcome this indolence?

The secret is to engage in a focus ritual every Sunday morning—something that wakes up your mind and gets your day moving. Read the paper with a strong cup of hot milk, take a walk with a friend,

For an ambitious student, Sunday is the most important day of the week. go for a jog followed by a hot shower, or spend some time in a nearby library. Then, with your energy, and

With your strong focus, settle into a quiet spot at the library and start working. While other students drowse, you will have a full, undisturbed day to get ahead of your work obligations.

This weekend ritual will also help you make that vital mental switch from to concentrate on weekend amusement. When you party on Sunday night, Monday morning is all the more depressing. The satisfaction you'll get from starting the week in full command of your responsibilities will provide a good mood and momentum.

If you take control of your Sunday, you take control of your week.

Sunday is not a day of fun; it is a day of success.

TEENAGE

It's raining,
But I don't feel the vibe,
Something hurting me inside
Ahh. This is teenage life!!!!
I wish can go somewhere and hide,
Beyond the world or in beneath the sky
Dancing alone wandering alone
Where no one tells me what is right
Dreaming and doing careless things
With my new grown wings
But it's just my dream right?????
I miss my old days
Where I used to get an apology
Saying it's a baby
Now, people get mad
On every mistake I made
Umm. This is teenage life
My friends give me advice
Who already are broken inside
This is just a chapter of life
Just sweet but sour sometimes

THAT FRIEND

I was lonely, until that friend came.
We were strangers, never talked to each other.
When we started, a lot of things were same.
Chit chat with that friend was a therapy of scolding from mother.

My mood gets change, after talking to that friend,
If I don't spend time with them, I feel caged.
I was having so much fun.
But I think, that friend wasn't.

One black day came! Our chit chat stopped,
Wondering and wandering to find that friend,
I don't know where they left hurting?

I object, how could it be!?
That thorny day, I couldn't forget.
Let me tell you clandestine,
Maybe I rankled my that friend or something too much, I didn't understand.

Was I too bad? My condolences.
I would never rankle around!
I'm sorry for that,
Can you find my that friend?

IT'S OK TO BE NOT OKAY

It's normal to have bad days sometimes,

It's okay to be not okay sometimes,

Days when you feel that you're not doing good,

Days when life feels gravely monotonous,

Days when negatives overwhelm you,

Days when people, do their best to break you,

These times are normal, we are in the age,

The age where any and everything makes you enraged,

Where people constantly, break and bring you down,

When you are helpless, and feel nothing except down,

Pretending to be okay can be a truckload of pain,

But sharing your problems, never brings you shame,

Asking for help is useful sometimes and make you feel better and heals you from inside,

But need a lot of courage and that too because of a bane,

This society judges and hurts you more, when they know that you're in pain,

People should understand it's not easy to feel weak,

But joking and demeaning never helps anybody,

People need to be empathetic towards ones who are not okay,

And don't be savages to give person all the blame,

By my words, I want to bring a change, where people uplift and understand when you are in pain,

It's okay to not be okay, is a message to all,

No matter what happens not everything is your fault,

Accept your weakness and rise above them all,

'Cause you'll grow by this and won't feel bad anymore,

Have a hobby, take up something to do,

Maybe tell a friend and can help you get over many other flaws than your own.

INDIA

Once upon a time in my future

I woke up from a horrible dream about a person named India. She had been suffering from cancer for the past two years. If you wonder why she was able to survive with blood coming out of her mouth every day, she was cursed a long time ago by the most selfish species of animals known as humans, who said she would never die but would suffer and cry because she was a woman. Being the only daughter of India, I had to convey this message to you. A blond-haired girl said to me. She was none other than the goddess Parvati.

She walks in the beauty of plastic, surrounded by an island near Daman and Diu. She has faded memories of being jovial. She spent her childhood being tortured by people she named poverty, pollution, and fossil fuels. She read from books how her brothers and sisters in Germany and the United States were leading a beautiful life. Now, whenever she goes back down memory lane, her face becomes drenched. Her whole body starts shivering as if she has epilepsy. It makes her feel nostalgic whenever she sees a man with a glass bottle. 40 years ago, she was adorned in red jewels and an expensive lehenga, which is how India's father decided to pay their daughter a future of blemishes and tears. She had to choose between broken bangles and pens. She tried telling people that education was important. She tried reciting poems by Rabindranath Thakur. People shushed her and told her that she was a liability because she was a woman. Around the time of her marriage ceremony, she went to get the flowers to cover those blemishes on her head. On her way, she was attacked by a group of young men surrounding her, assuring her that she regretted her decision to go out without anyone. They threw acid bottles on her face. She was left bleeding to death, and unfortunately, no one came to see the melting skin of India. The road was yellow because of the chemical reaction, and all the silent observers of injustice had their hands covered in India's blood. She probably started the sin of leaving the house 40 years ago. Whenever a female has the guts to shout at men, she will never come back with the same face again. Somehow her mother came to save her and let her choose a life in hell.

One of my favourite cousins was from Pakistan. She meticulously sewed their lovely relationship as brother and sister. Little did India know back then about political boundaries and fences. Yet human creeds can never overcome greed. I have perplexing thoughts, which are the arguments against my agony. My agony to save India The agony of being a woman Maybe I was wrong. Sometimes what we read in history, which is known for hysteria and struggle, is just not limited to those crisped pages of a limited edition book in your school's library. We still have history to learn about India in 2022.

Teacher's Corner

Reinvent our teaching.....

The best education is not given to students; it is drawn out of them.....by this thought I think, We as teachers are in a Noble profession in which we are creating the future of the country. Hence, to fulfil this responsibility, we have chosen this profound profession of teaching, and being teachers it's our moral and professional duty to be a good teacher, mentors, and an individual. For being a good teacher we have to be empathetic, and kind and we should have deep respect for each student in the class. We must make a deep and positive connection with the students and make the child comfortable with the teacher. We should know how to make the students passionate, enthusiastic, and keen toward education. The child should love to learn with the teacher, and should be able to discover an interest in our teaching.

Nowadays teaching is not only chalk and duster teaching, but it has also been converted into teaching using new technology, methodology, and activities. After Covid 19 children have become more visual and oral learners, so accordingly we have to change our teaching strategies so that the child can think critically, solve problems, and create knowledge that benefits both the student and society.

Reinventing the role of the teachers inside and outside the classroom can result in significantly better schools and

Teacher's Corner

Not any kind of AI can replace teachers.

“Technology is just a tool. In terms of getting the students work together and motivating them, the teacher is the most important”

Computer will be a machine only. And human touch will always be good for students. A computer cannot be compared with humans as we created digital things. It has no feelings like our teachers.

Teachers will always be on the priority for the students.

Teachers counsel the students or they shows some motivational videos to choose upon their career options. Teachers help or motivate their students by telling stories of their students who have succeeded in their life, walking on some or the other principles, discipline, rules, punctuality and regularity. In a School teacher organise extra Co-curricular activities which enhance the abilities of a pupil like thinking ability, development of confidence, abstract knowledge increases, they learn new words, their synonyms and antonyms.

What kind of tea is hard to swallow?
Reality.

WHAT DO YOU CALL A BOOMERANG THAT WON'T COME BACK?
A stick.

HOW DO YOU GET A SQUIRREL TO LIKE YOU?
Act like a nut.

WORDS OF THE MONTH

1. Cavil : make petty or unnecessary objections.

Use : The one cavil I have about the book is that it is written as a diary.

2. Obsequious : too obedient or respect full.

Use : The obsequious children irritated the teacher with their behaviour.

3. Domiciliary : in someone's home

Use : The local NGO made more than 50 domiciliary visits last month.

4. Scrawny : unattractively thin and bony.

Use : A few scrawny chickens were searching for scraps of food in the dry earth.

5. Jocose : playful or humorous.

Use : His jocose manner was un suitable for such a depressing occasion

Happy Parents

Hi, Satyan Jethani here. I am the father of Daksh Jethani, he was a new admission but he instantly adjusted into the crowd this is all thanks to the welcoming environment and humble and kind faculty. I admire the school very much in terms of study pattern too, as they have been trying to lower the children's burden which is absolutely wonderful. I love the fact that the children are paid attention to not only in terms of studies but also in terms of extracurricular activities. My son tells me loads about his day at school every day and I am happy to hear all positive things from him once again this is thanks to the amazing faculty and environment.

Hello, Myself Deepika Maheshwari, Mother of Suhani Maheshwari from class 10th G

I've always had faith in the teachers at MPS International School, and they've never let me disappointed. I am delighted that my daughter will be able to communicate with a person who will actually, listen to them and support them academically.

My children have consistently expressed their gratitude to the school. The administrative staff, as well as the instructors, genuinely care about the kids
